

conversation between a good physician and a patient is a most interesting one. In personal appearance she is tall and slender, with a face that is a study in itself. She wears spectacles and dresses richly, but in good taste.

According to McGonigal's theory, since Dr. McGonigal has often been accused of the slaying of Annie Goodwin, the pretty cigarette girl, her practice has been largely increased by the patronage of his old patients.

In making her rounds she rides in a gig drawn by a brown horse. Since his release on bail, Dr. McGonigal has often been seen passing on her visits, but her friends deny that he has practiced any, in spite of the statements of dead Arthur Yeo's friends and relatives to the contrary.

Dr. Dale, a very devoted member of the Mount Morris Baptist Church, at Fifth Avenue and one hundred and twenty-sixth street, was formerly attended the Lexington Avenue Baptist Church in East One Hundred and Eleventh street.

Her confinement in the Long Island City Jail is having a visible effect upon Dr. Dale, although McGonigal seems to take his imprisonment very philosophically, although profane.

To-morrow morning the coroner, William T. Birdsell, of 280 Broadway, will continue habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Carleton, in Long Island City, with a view to obtaining the discharge or the release of his clients on bail, which he insists should be nominal.

District Attorney Fleming and Coroner Meiners will oppose any such attempt. It is said that Miss Dale will offer her brother, James S. Dale, a Mott Haven builder, for her bondsman.

The inquest into the cause of Mrs. Webb's death will be held Tuesday.

MAY KATHEE YEO'S BODY.

There is a possibility that there may be an investigation into the cause of Arthur Yeo's death, now that it is known that Dr. McGonigal, a convicted criminal, was his attending physician, although the death certificate was signed by Dr. Dale.

Joseph Yeo, the father of the dead man, told an Evening World reporter that although he told the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police that Dr. McGonigal had been treating his son he neglected to inform Coroner Schultze of that fact. Mr. Yeo also said that when he spoke of Dr. McGonigal to the sergeant in charge, and also to two policemen whom he met in front of Coroner Schultze's house, the policemen said to him:

"Oh, don't drag McGonigal into this. Let the poor old man rest."

Coroner Schultze was not at the coroner's office, at 27 Chambers street, this morning, and as it was not his "tour" he was not expected during the day. He is said to be out of town with his family.

Although Coroner Schultze's opinion could not be learned, there is no question regarding his power to act in the matter and to even order Yeo's body to be exhumed and a post-mortem held if he is satisfied that there were suspicious circumstances attending the young electrician's death.

Clerk Reynolds, of the Board of Coroners, said this morning that such a proceeding was unquestionably within the province of a coroner's duty, even though there was no positive proof of foul play or malpractice, and he added:

"I am not a coroner, but if I was the mere fact that Dr. McGonigal was connected with that case would be sufficient grounds for investigating it."

There is positive evidence that McGonigal treated Yeo, and that he requested that his identity be kept a secret. It is possible, too, that the exact nature and contents of the prescriptions he used may also be learned.

although Fred Yeo, the dead man's brother, told an Evening World reporter that many of Dr. McGonigal's prescriptions were filled by Dr. Dale.

"I know this," he said, "for I went to Dr. Dale to get several of them filled. I also read several of the prescriptions and saw the word 'morphine' several times."

SISTARE'S BODY IN A CELLAR.

His Brother Fails to Make Any Funeral Arrangements.

The body of George K. Sistare, the bankrupt broker whose suicide in one of the parlors of the Manhattan Club yesterday shocked club and financial circles, is lying in a cold storage vault at 139 First Avenue this morning, to which it was removed yesterday.

No friend or relative has visited the place for the purpose of viewing the body, and though William H. M. Sistare, a brother of the suicide, promised to make the necessary funeral arrangements with the undertaker, he had not put in an appearance this morning.

The body is lying in an ice box in the cellar of the undertaker's store, and though the ice is visible only through a plate glass, the features are peaceful and the death-dealing wound is not visible. The body will be taken to the funeral home at 139 First Avenue this morning.

To an Evening World reporter Undertaker Kipp said that, while he was waiting to hear from William H. M. Sistare regarding the disposition of the body, he thought the funeral would take place from his store to-morrow afternoon, and that the interment would be in Easton, Pa., where the suicide's wife, who died nine years ago, is buried. The body will be accompanied to Easton by W. H. M. Sistare and brother-in-law, Mr. Hatch.

That George K. Sistare, the suicide, made some threat or attempt to take the life of his brother, W. H. M. Sistare, about a week ago there seems to be little doubt, notwithstanding the latter's denial that such an attempt was made.

In his story of the suicide Lawyer Henry S. Bennett, the legal adviser of the Sistares, who was talking to George Sistare when he shot himself, says:

"As George K. Sistare walked up to the steps of the club-house with me he said: 'There is a report out that I tried to shoot my brother, but it was a mistake. I wouldn't shoot him. I have carried a pistol for a long time, but I wouldn't kill my brother. Here is the pistol.' He drew a revolver from his pocket and showed it to me, but as we entered the door he put it back."

When they were seated on the sofa he remarked: 'It's all over town about my attempting to shoot my brother, but it's all wrong. We were standing in front of his house, and when I drew my pistol to show him he saw the gleam of the barrel and said, "Oh, don't draw a pistol on you about a week ago."'

"No, that is all imagination. It is an evidence of his insanity."

Elevator Boy Charged with Theft. Charles Gordon, eighteen years old, an elevator boy employed at 800 811 Broadway, was held today for robbing the premises of J. G. and Sons, clothing store, in that building.

LOOKING FOR FIGHT.

Old Hands Invade the Homestead Mills in Freight Cars.

Non-Union Workers There Bombarded with Lumps of Coal.

Supt. O'Mara Says All of Berkman's Pals Are in Custody.

Homestead, July 28.—Only about 1,000 of the State troops, including one battery of field pieces and a small squadron of cavalry remain in Homestead this morning.

The officers and privates of this provisional brigade are doubly vigilant, however, as they cannot now hope to overawe the locked-out men by mere force of numbers.

The much-trusted clash between the mill men and the militia was nearly precipitated last night, when a number of the old hands boarded a Peenick freight train bound through the works. Once inside the mill assailed the non-union workers there with lumps of coal, and had not the presence of the time ran his engine through the yards at full speed serious trouble might have resulted. As it was, orders were immediately given to the Provost Guard to search all freight trains passing through the yard, and to arrest any of the old hands found concealed in the cars.

The families of twenty-two of the old hands were evicted last night from the Company's houses. This was done without disorder, the men having made up their minds that the Company was in earnest when it declared that they must either return to work within a stipulated time or move out. The time limit expired last night.

Twenty-two families were provided with temporary quarters by the Advisory Committee of the Amalgamated Association.

Elmer Baile, one of the men arrested yesterday on new information lodged by the Carnegie Company, and charging riot, says today that he will sue General Supt. Potter, of the works, for conspiracy and the attempt to intimidate, Potter having threatened, he says, to cause his arrest if he persisted in his refusal to return to work.

Another lot of non-union men were sent into the works this morning.

The great lockout is just one month old and has already cost over $1,000,000 besides the sacrifice of a half score of human lives and serious injuries to many times that number.

Of the loss in cash the military has cost in round figures $100,000, the workmen have lost in wages $180,000 and the Carnegie have spent and lost as much more in getting new workmen. The workmen at Beaver Falls, Pa., and the Colon Mills in Pittsburgh have lost about $100,000 in wages by their sympathy strike and the firm is out $100,000 by the illness of these plants.

Added to this will be the county expenses for deputy sheriffs and murder trials, the expense to the city for hunting Anarchists and to the nation for the Congressional investigations.

The locked-out workmen have not as yet been deprived of any of the necessities of life, and if the fight should last several weeks yet, there is no danger of the workmen's families coming to actual want.

The Relief Committee which has charge of all poorer paid labor meets all demands upon it, though only the long line of persons seeking assistance grows larger. The non-union men are beginning to receive an astonishing number of threatening letters. The following is a sample:

Homestead, July 28.—Notice.—All non-union men desiring to leave the mill will be provided for by the union men of Homestead. But if who stay at work will seek their God. All are being evicted.

As a result of the coal-brokers' passing trains last night, the railroad company has placed detectives on the trestle and will arrest any persons who repeat the offense.

Hugh O'Donnell yet remains away, but members of the Advisory Committee are in communication with him, and seem to expect something favorable as a result of his mission.

MOLLOCK IN A PITTSBURG JAIL.

A Despatch from Emma Goldman Found Upon Him.

Pittsburgh, July 28.—Frederick Mollock, the Long Branch baker, who was brought to Pittsburgh last night by Superintendent of Police O'Mara, is locked up in the county jail here today charged with being an Anarchist before and after the fact to the shooting of J. G. Frick by Anarchist Alexander Berkman.

Supt. O'Mara said he had no trouble with Mollock and didn't find it necessary to handcuff him. He spent the time on route in smoking cigarettes and drinking beer when he could get it. He admitted that he was an Anarchist, and also that he went to Berkman. The latter, he said, befriended him when he was in need, and he sent money in response to a letter from Berkman asking for a loan of $10. He asserted positively that he knew nothing of the intended assassination of Mr. Frick, and did not hear of it until after the shooting.

A telegram was found on his person from Emma Goldman telling him to come on to New York at once. This telegram, he claimed, referred to his wife, who was sick.

When Supt. O'Mara was told of the threat to have him arrested for taking Mollock out of New Jersey without a requisition, he laughed and said he was not at all alarmed by it. He said Mollock came willingly and that he was not with him the line between New Jersey and Pennsylvania was crossed. After getting into Pennsylvania he rearrested Mollock, so there could be no foundation for a charge of kidnapping.

The superintendent looked tired by the trip, but the prisoner was as chipper as could be. He pattered along beside the big Superintendent, puffing away at a cigarette in contentment, and apparently wholly indifferent to the excitement which his arrival occasioned.

Anybody could tell from his appearance that the fellow is an Anarchist. His beard and his lack of acquaintance with soap and water give him away," said Police Inspector McElvey, citing the Automobile from the opposite side of the depot platform.

Supt. O'Mara believes that all of the principals in the crime to kill Mr. Frick have been apprehended. There may be some others who were aware of the intentions of Berkman, but it is doubtful if they will ever be brought to justice unless it is through the confession of some of those now in prison.

As for Herr Must, the Superintendent says that there is nothing so far discovered which connects him with the crime.

The most significant thing found among the effects of Bauer, the Anarchist, was a red card in the shape of a book that apparently was the "open sesame" to Anarchist meetings, and it was held only by those in the inner circle, over the top of the inner side was the legend "Alarm Club," the next line was "Certificate of Membership for Henry Bauer."

It was signed by E. Koesters, Secretary. On the lower page were four rows of squares marked by dotted lines. There were thirteen in each line, which gave one for every week in the year. Apparently whenever the card was presented it was stamped with a rubber stamp, "Alarm Club," in one of the squares.

The book also contained letters from August Spies, Max Y. Zandt, Herr Most and other Anarchists. Among the pictures was one which was identified as that of the man seen with Berkman on Saturday.

The story of the riot among the non-union men on the Cincinnati train yesterday was the invention of a tramp printer and is without foundation. There was no trouble on the train whatever. The men who were on the train are all now at work in the Homestead plant.

CRITCHLOW WAS SEEN TO SHOOT.

One of the Homestead Riots Held Without Ball for Murder.

Pittsburgh, July 28.—Sylvester Critchlow, one of the Homestead rioters, has been held without bail by Judge Magee to answer a charge of murder in the first degree.

At the hearing in his case, Samuel Stewart, a clerk in the Homestead Mills, testified that he saw Critchlow aim and fire a gun at the Hibernians.

Critchlow is the first man so far arrested against whom the Carnegies have produced any direct evidence. He claims that there is a conspiracy on the side of the prosecution to hang him.

Iron Manufacturers Propose Arbitration.

Pittsburgh, July 28.—The Iron Manufacturers' Association has made a proposition to the Amalgamated Association that the workmen return to their places at the old scale, leaving the present troublesome question of wages to arbitration. The manufacturers are willing to wait two weeks for a reply, and have adjourned for that length of time, to allow the Amalgamated committee to present the proposition to the Association.

$500 REWARD FOR LITTLE JIM.

Did He Fall Off the Pier or Has He Run Away from Home?

His Distracted Mother Fears He Has Been Kidnapped.

$500 REWARD OFFERED for the return of Jimmy McNamara, of No. 5 North Moore st., New York, a five years old boy.

The foregoing notice was published this morning.

Little James McNamara was his parents' only boy. They have other children, but he was the "baby," and with his disappearance all joy has vanished from the McNamara home.

have conspired themselves that the little fellow would find his way back all right.

While they were seeking themselves in this hope, thirteen-year-old Joseph Bradley, of 15 North Moore street, told Mr. McNamara yesterday that little Jimmy had fallen into the water and drowned.

Joseph White, who said that he had ever made such a statement.

"Jimmy was not drowned. He ran away," said.

An Evening World reporter asked little Joseph this morning why he had told young Joseph White that Jimmy was drowned.

"I didn't tell him," was the answer, "it was another boy who told him."

The little fellow blushed at this question and began to fidget about in his chair, but remained silent. At length, on a repetition of the question, he answered:

"I don't know."

Mrs. Bradley, Joseph's mother, afterwards told the reporter:

"I never heard the little fellow tell my son that Jimmy was drowned."

Timothy Shanley, of 15 Beach street, also claims to have seen Jimmy fall into the water. But on his description of the place where the child fell, Mr. McNamara claims it would have been utterly impossible for him to have gotten even near the water.

Barkeeper Schiavelli, who was at Mr. Shanley's school when an Evening World reporter called there this morning, said:

"Jimmy is never out of bed after a cold. He had been lying in bed when the alleged drowning occurred."

Although the parents' fears are keenly felt by the district which these conflicting accounts have bred, they are still unwilling to admit that their little one will not be returned to them.

Little James was a general favorite with all the neighbors, particularly with the men in the neighborhood, who were very fond of him for his age, and remarkably bright, and of a sweet and gentle disposition.

He had thin grey hair, blue eyes and fair hair, and there were two little spots, recently broken out over his right eye.

Mrs. McNamara is heavily creased with grief. "What are you to do with this child?" she compares with my last darling. I would take a million times over that amount if I had it. I could only give him to my heart's desire."

Mr. McNamara works as a loader for the Fall River Line Transfer Company.

Stanford University Students Object to an Increase in Charges.

Stanford University, July 28.—There is likely to be a big row at the Stanford University when the students return next month, as the price of living in the college dormitories has been advanced $10 per month. This increase is the work of April 1st, when Senator Stanford's brother-in-law, who manages the material department of the university.

He had just announced the increase of $10 per month when a student named John Lauren made a new move. He announced that he would not pay the increase, and would leave the university if it was not lowered.

Tonitelli May Prevent His Debating the Tariff with McKinley.

Chicago, July 28.—Henry Watteason, of Louisville, is at the McMillen suffering from an attack of tonitelli. The attack is of so severe a nature that his doctor will not allow him to see any one, fearing his condition might be aggravated by any work.

It is questionable if Mr. Watteason will be able to keep his engagement to take part in joint debates with Gov. McKinley this afternoon upon the tariff question, under the auspices of the Madison (Wis.) Chautauqua Society.

HERE'S A SEALSKIN TRUST.

A Big Corporation of Fur Dealers with $10,000,000 Capital.

Fur dealers have formed a trust under the laws of New Jersey. The movement began in Albany, where is located the fur house of Treadwell & Co., the largest in the country.

In addition to the fur dealers, Chemical National Bank of New York, the Merchants National Bank of New York, the First National Bank of New York, the American Bank and the Third City and Trust Company of New York will act as trustees of the stock.

Treadwell & Co. are the principal owners of the trust, and all the large dealers in the country have joined or will join it.

Treadwell & Co. also possess a secret for dressing seal skins exceeding either the French or English methods, which all the members of the trust will be allowed to use, thus saving the expense of sending the skins abroad as formerly.

Among the directors are George H. Treadwell, John D. Parsons, George H. Treadwell, H. Burnett, Augustus H. Ward and N. J. Block.

FOR A LIVING MAN'S "WIDOW."

A Purse of $1,000 to Be Raised for the Wife of Stephen White.

Stephen White, of 2334 Eighth avenue, who was seriously injured by the strikers at Andover, Kansas, died on Wednesday morning while applying for work, is now at the Bellevue Hospital and progressing favorably.

He smiled pleasantly this morning when told by an Evening World reporter that $1,000 has been subscribed for his "bereaved widow" by the building material dealers.

"Some one circled a report that I had died," he said, "but you see I am still alive. The money is being applied for the Board of Widows' Delegates to investigate the building which was destroyed by the strike last year, and President Lasser said this morning the board would probably order out this afternoon 2,000 of the men who are now working."

A French Forger Sent Back.

Chicago, July 28.—Extradition papers were received from Washington yesterday advising United States Marshal Hitchcock to send Louis Napoleon Aurat back to Paris, where he is wanted to answer a charge of forging drafts for $50,000 francs. He was taken to New York last night.
